

Rescue Groups

can help create a Socially Conscious Animal Community by:

Embracing the fundamental tenets of Socially Conscious Sheltering and developing collaborative partnerships with Shelters

Engaging in collaborative community planning to optimize systems and resources in the best interest of animals

Moving animals to locations with increased access to resources

Including programs and services focused on animals who struggle within shelter systems

Operating within local, state, and federal regulations and laws

Working with shelters to advocate for change in public policy to meet community needs
